LEAGUE ACCEPTS OFFER

Peaceful Settlement Is Assured By Action

Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Once more the component parts of the mining industry, capital and labor, have demonstrated their ability to get on together in Nevada County without recourse to strife. To this writer the amicable settlement between management and workers reached last week and ratified yesterday by the Mine Workers Protective League is a triumph of the old-fashioned loyalties and a defeat for those forces which, in so many parts of the country are energetically seeking to stir class hatred.

When we speak of loyalties we think of a miner we know, who has worked for one of the local mine operators for 37 years. He has given the best years of his life to mining, and the mining company still employs him despite his years, because of his loyalty, his integrity, and his industry.

And on the other hand, when radicals swarmed into camp and sought by the most vicious methods to disrupt the mining industry, throw hundreds of workers out of employment, and to bring to this peaceful community the most hell-raising aspect of the New Deal, the Mine Workers Protective League, by and large, was the chief agency in squelching the rioters. The League defended itself and the mines from this lunatic foray. Loyalty is a two-way street.

We have always believed that the League deserved the support of all citnzens, but more than that we have never been able to see why all miners should not be members. The comparatively small initiation fee and dues, and the large benefits, such as weekly payments in case of injury, donations to widows and orphans, and aid in case of death, gives the league an eminent place among labor organizations.

The money collected from members is expended locally. None of it goes to pay the expenses of strikes in Maine or Timbuctoo, as it would do, were the League a unit in a national organization. There are no assessments. Its officers are familiar with many of the problems of the mine operators, and with the local conditions. They know what it is reasonable to expect in dealing with the mine operators.

For twenty years differences between the League and mine operators have been ironed out satisfactorily by negotiation, and the fact that mine wages in Nevada county are higher than anywhere else in the country, bears witness to the fact that labor peace pays dividends to workers, to mine stockholders, and to all that community of business interests that serve the mining industry.

One complaint has been widely voiced in recent weeks, which if true, would have been a reason for worker resentment against the mine operators. But investigation proves it untrue. Injured mine workers, it was reported, were returned to work before their injuries were healed in order to cut down costs of compensation. As a matter of fact injured men have returned of their own volition, not to their regular jobs, but to work which permitted their injuries to heal, and at the same time enabled

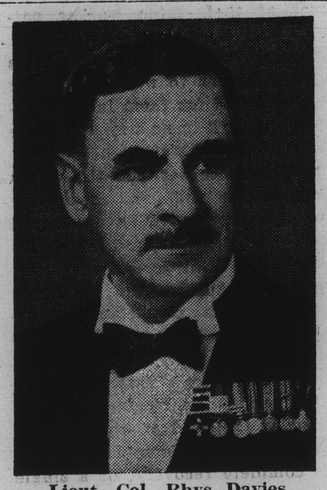
WILL DELIVER LECTURE



Lieut. Col. Rhys Davies

Lieutenant Colonel Rhys Davies, D. S. O., is a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Foreman here. Davies, for the benefit of the British War Relief, will give a lecture on "The Battle of Britain" at the Veterans Memorial Building in Grass Valley Thursday night. Davies and Foreman were "buddies" in the World War.

NOTED OFFICER WILL SPEAK IN BEHALF OF BWR

Lieutenant Colonel Rhys Davies, staff lecturer and commander of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, will deliver an address Thursday night at the Veterans Memorial Building in Grass Valley as a benefit to the British War Relief.

Through his connections with the British intelligence service, Davies, who will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Foreman of this city during the week, is considered excellently qualified to speak on the topic he has chosen for this lecture—"The Battle of Britain."

Campaign Veteran

Davies has been through many campaigns. He is a veteran of the World War and was mentioned in dispatches six times and was awarded the Distinguished Service Order three times.

Besides renewing acquaintanceship with Foreman, who was a "buddy" in the World War, Davies will meet while here Ed Jacobs, a former companion officer.

The appearance of the brilliant speaker at the Veterans Memorial Building in Grass Valley is expected to attract hundreds of listeners.

Singing and Concert

Besides the lecture the California-Cornish Gold Mining Singers will sing and Harold George's orchestra will give a concert. Howard Bennetts, commander of the Banner Mountain Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will show movies on "The Evacuation of Dunkirk."

The program is being sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Hague-Thomas-Hegarty Post of the American Legion and the Canadian Legion. Bennetts, W. W. Estery, commander of the American Legion Post and Foreman are members of the committee arranging for the lecture and concert.

Hydraulic Mining Publication To Cease

Several local members of the California Hydraulic Mining Association attended the meeting held in Marysville Saturday afternoon.

Secretary H. F. Sofge of the local chamber of commerce was appointed on a committee to arrange a method to notify each member of the organization of the meeting date each month, thus discontinuing the Hydraulic Miner, the voice of the association, which had been sent to members each month.

Mine League's Stand and Mine Owner's Offer

To the Officers and members of the Mine Workers Protective League—Brothers:

At a meeting of the negotiating committee with the operators on February 5th, 1941, the committee presented the following:

The negotiating committee is willing to recommend to the organization the following terms, if the closed shop agreement be incorporated in the 1941 contract.

1.—That we Do Not want the hiring hall.

2.—That we Do Not want the check off system.

3.—That we Do Not want the operators to act as a collection agency of the organization to hold out any dues or fines that may be imposed upon its members.

The negotiation committee is also willing to recommend to the organization the following conditions to be incorporated in the contract. (This suggestion was handed to the committee by Brother Earl Sharpe.)

To prevent strikes during the term of the new contract, a permanent mediator be appointed, to which all disputes may be referred. Said mediator to be agreeable to both parties.

In the event said mediator be unsuccessful in settling a dispute, that an outside arbitrator to be agreeable to both parties and the decision of said arbitrator to be binding on all parties.

The operators to grant a closed shop on the above or similar conditions.

The organization wishes the privilege, that in the event that the operators are willing to agree to deal with the organization on a closed shop on the above provisions, that we be allowed to have counsel sit in on the conference or agreement.

The negotiating committee on these terms are willing to suspend all strike action until a special called meeting will be called immediately to act upon it.

The proposal did not meet with the approval of the operator representatives, as they said this plan would still place the burden of securing and maintaining league membership on the operators, and require the operators to force each and every employee to join the league and keep his dues paid up as the price of his job, which was just what the operators had objected to all the way.

Mr. Searls then asked if the committee would consider any alternative or counter proposal. Brother Donnelly replied that while the committee had no authority to negotiate on any other basis than that of the closed shop, that we were perfectly agreeable to take back to the league, at a special meeting, any proposal the operators might suggest.

The committee then retired to another room while the operators prepared the following proposal:

February 5, 1941

Negotiating Committee, Mine Workers Protective League
Grass Valley, California.

Gentlemen:

We have given careful consideration to the proposal submitted by your committee at the conference held at the Empire Mine office, this date, which was attended by your committee and representatives of the operators of the Idaho-Mayland, Brunswick, Bullion, Golden Center, Empire, Pennsylvania, North Star, Spring Hill, Murchie and Zeibright Mines. As a result of consideration of your proposal, and the discussion with you that followed, we are prepared to submit the following solution of controversy which has existed between the league and the operators over the closed shop question:

"The operator recognizes that a majority of its employees desire the league to act as exclusive bargaining agency for the mine to which this contract refers. The operator therefore recognizes the league as the exclusive bargaining agency for all workers in operator's employ at said mine, except supervisory, office and engineering personnel.

"The operator agrees that the league may have in each of operators mines a committee consisting of one league member employee from each working group large enough to have a shift boss, which league committeeman shall be recognized as organizer for the league in the group in which he works, with authority to contact employees during the lunch hour, in the dry, or at the shaft collars, with a view to obtaining or continuing their membership in the league."

The foregoing proposal is made with the hope that it will be accepted by the organization which you represent and that

Agreement Recognizes League As Exclusive Bargaining Agency

Protective League Given Right To Contact Mine Employees During Lunch, In Dry And Shaft Collars

The membership of the Nevada County Mine Workers Protective League by a 2 to 1 majority voted to accept the proposal of the mine operators for a peaceful settlement of the controversy between the league and the owners which has been pending for the past month. The vote was 413 to 214.

The proposal of the mine owners, although not incorporating a closed shop, which the league had asked, recognizes the labor organization as the exclusive bargaining agency for all workers except supervisory, office and engineering personnel and gives it the right to have its organizers contact the men during the lunch hour, in the dry or at the shaft collars with a view to obtaining their membership.

Vote Preceded By Several Hour Debate

The vote on the proposal followed several hours of debate. President Cliney Donnelly informed the members of the meaning of the operators proposal and presented each of the 650 attending the meeting with a copy of the offer as well as the league's demand.

"The operators proposal," Donnelly said, "is virtually and technically a closed shop. However, it places the entire responsibility upon the organization itself to accomplish what the union has been asking for."

Contract To Be Signed Today

The league's negotiating committee, of which Donnelly is chairman, will contact the mine owners late today for the formal signing of the contract. The committee was authorized at yesterday's meeting to sign an 18-months or two years contract if the operators approved. The previous contract, which expired December 31st of last year, was for one year.

In previous contracts the operators recognized the Mine Workers Protective League as the sole bargaining agent for employees of the mines who were members of the league and those who may become members.

Clause of New Contract

The new contract will contain the following two paragraph clause:

"The operator recognizes that a majority of its employees desire the league to act as exclusive bargaining agency for the mine to which this contract refers. The operator therefore recognizes the league as the exclusive bargaining agency for all workers in operator's employ at said mine, except supervisory, office and engineering personnel.

"The operator agrees that the league may have in each of operators mines a committee consisting of one league member employee from each working group large enough to have a shift boss, which league committeeman shall be recognized as organizer for the league in the group in which he works, with authority to contact employees during the lunch hour, in the dry, or at the shaft collars, with a view to obtaining or continuing their membership in the league."

The decision to accept the offer of the mine owners resulted in the cancelling of all the previous strike action of the league. The strike deadline had been set for Saturday but when the offer was made by the mine owners last Wednesday the walkout was postponed pending the outcome of yesterday's mass meeting, held for the purpose of accepting or rejecting the proposal.

The protective league reportedly gained more than 200 new members since the dispute over the new contract began.

The mines with which the new contract will apply include the Murchie, Zeibright, Spring Hill, Idaho-Maryland, New Brunswick, Bullion, Golden Center, Scotia, North Star, Pennsylvania and Empire.

Bernard Shaw's Boner

Through half a long lifetime George Bernard Shaw has happily cultivated the quite widespread belief that his intellect is a thing of perfection. He's high-hatted and laughed at the world in brainy glee. But now, in his eighties, Shaw finds his far past rising to taunt and dismay him. He is threatening to sue a beauty of bygone days if she publishes love letters he wrote to her half a century ago—for he's alarmed and jittery at being made to look silly. Most men will feel sorry for the old boy. But many a man who has been cast in the Shavian category of the dumb herd of mankind will rejoice that, at least, he remembered in the days of his youth the wise adage: "Do right, and fear no man; don't write—and fear no woman." Shaw's boner was a common one—but common, it seems, to geniuses as well as gents of commoner clay.—Contributed.

Slang of the New Army

Every war produces its own brand of slang—tangy as ginger and with a kick almost alcoholic in force. Take Uncle Sam's new Army:

"A mustard played bing with the ack-acks, thinging it would put him in solid with the horned toad when the eagle flies. What'd it get him? A yellow ticket for risking his lovebird and getting sprayed with chatterbox confetti." That means, translated from '41 slang of the '41 army: "A young enthusiastic pilot risked anti-aircraft fire thinking it would win him favor with the ranking officer on pay rating. What did he accomplish? He was dishoronably discharged for risking his plane unnecessarily and for being sprayed with machine gun fire."

Slang seems the pepper of the language—too much is unendurable, but it is perfect seasoning. Some of the new soldier slang will stick to enrich the language, no doubt. "Mystery," meaning hash, isn't bad; nor is "the eagle flies," meaning pay day. Most slang dies. But slang that chances to fit a vacant chink in a language may live on indefinitely. Anyone who says "I'll wager you did," or "care killed a cat," or "comparisons are odorous," or "laugh that off," or "go sell yourself to someone else"—directly quotes Shakespeare! The Army slang of '41 is as new as tomorrow morning; but out of the excitement and tenseness of training will come bits of language to be quoted centuries hence—flinty sparks of expression to live when this world crisis is dim history — Contributed.

The New Debt Limit

Sixty-five billion dollars!

That's what Uncle Sam and his 130,000,000 nephews will shortly owe. It's a terrific one-jump spurt, from a debt limit of $45,000,000,000 to $60 billion; but the main occasion is the cost of making America secure against attack, and so the increase is accepted as essential.

So much for looking forward. Looking backward—to days before the Nazi horde began the rape of Europe, before there was a national call for rearmament, before Britain needed a dime of aid from us—the picture is black and inexcusably so. In the last eight years, the federal government has been running in the red at the rate of $280,471,312 a month. or $6,492 a minute or $108.20 a second! The total deficit of the eight years is nearly 27 billion dollars!

That was peace time spending, a peace time deficit. The danger now seems that, with national income rising through defense spending, state goverenments—including California's—tend to regard it as an act of "economy" to balance a budget that has been unwieldly for years by the negative process of watching the tax income rise to meet it. After all, defense spending prosperity is debt prosperity; a $65,000,000,000 national debt will be more burdensome than a $45,000,000,000 national debt—and unless state governments and all local governments, including California's, economize to reduce state spending and state deficits, instead of spending on at the rate that was inviting financial trouble in the heedless and experimental 1930's, the final sairifice will be grievous for every home owner, every farm owner, every taxpayer, every holder of a life insurance policy, every citizen who lives on the dollars he earns.

It isn't the new defense spending debt limit that worries thoughful economists so much as the seeming complacence with which the American public permitted the growth of the Frankenstein of extravagance that menaced prosperity before extraordinary war expenditure was thought of—Contribhted.

Newspaper Ads Boosts Sales of Acme Beer

Crediting newspaper advertising with a vital part in building a tremendous sales leadership, President Karl F. Schuster of Acme Breweries today announced an increase in gallonage for 1940 of 6.87 per cent ocer 1939 sales in contrast to a loss of 2.72 per cent for the remainder of the California Brewing industry.

Schuster stated that "Acme alone accounted for 22.03 per cent of all beer sold by California brewers during the past year, according to figures released by the State Board of Equalization. Acme Beer's total sales in the western states during 1940 totaled 16,499,113, representing a gain of 1,060,636 gallons and a leadership of 5,237,449 gallons over the second best sellers."

This gain coincides with the announcement of an increased newspaper advertising budget for 1941, in some instances amounting to as much as 50 per cent.

them to draw regular daily wages, far in excess of the compensation they would have received had they remained home until their injuries were completely healed.

For instance, a man with a broken finger, his arm in a sling, was put to work. But what work? With his good hand he plugged pegs in a board, keeping tally on the skips. He was mighty glad to take this job, and get his regular pay, instead of insurance benefits. From some such incidents as this have spread the report that men have been returned to their jack hammers, or to mucking shovels with half healed legs or arms in casts. As a matter of fact this never has happened. State inspectors carefully scrutinize all records of injuries, but aside from this, the medical staffs of the mines refuse absolutely to jeopardize the lives of their mine worker patients and their own reputations. However, when injured miners wish to return to work, and work can be found for them in the mines, which will in no way aggravate their injuries, this has been done. The difference between the wages they receive and the insurance benefits they would have received in remaining home, until their injuries were healed, was altogether to their advantage. And, as ong as he followed the physicians instructions, he was in no danger. The investigation made by this writer reveals not a single instance, of an injured man being further disabled by the kind of work he was given to do in the mines pending his complete recovery, or a single instance of a man who returned to work, following injury, unwillingly.

Moreover, this practice of finding suitable light work for injured miners, pending the complete healing of their hurts, has only been in effect during the last two or three years. Formerly, if a man was hurt he stayed home, willy nilly, until completely recovered, and had to subsist on the compensation payments, which do not begin until seven days after the accident.

Politically Speaking

By JOHN W. DUNLAP
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 10.—(UP)—The problem of handling the latest request of the federal social security board—making the old age pension and blind aid laws of California conform to the federal statutes has the legislature frankly worried.

John W. Dunlap.

The stakes are high in the last instance. The federal board has threatened to cut off California payments of $2,760,000 monthly for aged aid and $144,150 monthly for blind aid. The dispute hinges on extra income which may be earned without penalty by the recipients of such aid.

The California program has been to allow old age clients to earn up to $15 monthly and still be eligible to receive the maximum $40 pension, of which half was contributed by the federal government and the other half jointly by the state and counties. Blind persons were permitted up to $400 annually.

Miss Martha Chickering director of social welfare, announced the state social welfare board had used every argument in an effort to sidestep the federal demand, since the amendments to the federal law going into effect July 1 will outlaw this extra income.

The new regulations will bar regular income and require its deduction from whatever aid is given. Casual and irregular income items up to one third of the recipient's aid grant will be permitted, however.

There are 151,000 old age security recipients in California, of which approximately 15,000 would be reduced by a few dollars a month as the result of the proposed amendments. It was not known exactly yet what effect will be on the 7300 blind aid recipients. But any reduction in the already small payments likely will be a distinct hardship to those affected, according to Miss Chickering.

To show the liberality of the present $15 exemption, old age recipients may include income from labor or service, rent from premises owned by applicants, value of foodstuffs or other merchantable products produced by the applicant, value of firewood or water produced or given him, value of gifts other than regular contributions from legally responsible relatives.

Blind aid exemptions were somewhat similar.

Senator Robert Kenny of Los Angeles introduced legislation to make the state laws conform, although it was not so much personal choice as his willingness to cooperate with the social welfare department in a necessary move.

The average legislator in Sacramento has qualms about taking any action to arouse the elder citizens. They carry a potent vote and will resent any move to restrict their meager income. As a matter of fact, there is opposite legislation in the hopper to increase the exemption allowed, rather than decrease it.

One of these bills would permit the old age recipients to average the $15 monthly income over a year, to permit the profitable months for outside employment and earnings to offset the lean periods.

Many lawmakers feel there is too much conformity already with the federal social security board. There was quite a shouting heard when the state social welfare department was required to insist that all counties in the state institute merit systems for county employes, as required by the federal board. Counties refusing were threatened with losing their monthly payments, and no county or state has the resources to afford losing this sizeable check.

There might be a showdown when the matter comes up for debate in the legislature. The members already have passed a memorial to congress against any interference with California pension laws but the old hands at the game know these memorials are hardly worth the paper they are printed on.

The typical legislator feels that old people should be encouraged to earn extra income if they can. Some develop enough sources of income to go off the pension rolls. There is frank criticism of any move to discourage such initiative, although it is admitted that the saving, multiplied by the deduction throughout this country, might be of substantial proportions in a year's time.

There will be much oratory and arm waving over the subject when the legislature comes back to the state house on March 3, that's certain.

The Church Makes History

(Editor's Note: Another of a series of articles by Mrs. Elizabeth Cherry Pateman, wife of Rev. H. Thomas Pateman, pastor of the local Trinity Episcopal Church, on The Church Makes History. Further articles will appear in subsequent issues.)

By ELIZABETH CHERRY PATEMAN

Chaplains of the Church of England sailed from their homeland four centuries ago with English explorers to discover new lands for their queen. Seldom are their names recorded in the histories of the time; yet, to these men is due the credit for the earliest church services in the New World.

Francis Fletcher was one of these chaplains. He sailed from England in the winter of 1577 on the Pelican, one of the ships that Sir Francis Drake was to take through the Strait of Magellan to the Pacific Ocean. After a long trip and many sea fights the Pelican alone emerged from the Strait and made her way up the west coast of the new world.

On the first Sunday after Trinity June 21, 1579, the ship put into "a convenient and fit harbor" along the coast of North America — possibly San Francisco bay—for repairs. Masses of Indians gathered to look with awe upon the white men. The sight of clergymen and rough seamen kneeling in prayer after their eventful trip had a powerful effect upon the watchers. Only with difficulty were the Indians prevented from making sacrifices to the white men as gods.

Sir Francis Drake won highest honors from the crown for his bold trip through the Strait of Magellan and on around the world. Francis Fletcher hardly shared in this renown. But to him goes the recognition of the church, for he was the first clergyman of the Church of England to conduct the Prayer Book service and minister the Sacraments on the Pacific Coast or within all the land now called the United States.

State 1940 Gas Tax Receipts Total $56,723,245

It's getting so that figures relative to California's gasoline consumption are something like the statistics used to measure the size and distance of the planets.

Anyway, motorists of the state used 1,890,774,847 gallons of motor vehicle fuel during 1940 and at the current rate of increase it appears the two billion gallon mark soon will be passed as an annual figure, according to A. E. Collins, chairman of the state board of equalization.

Board records indicate that a tax of $56,723,245.41 was assessed against the 1940 consumption. This represented a gain of $2,400,323.40 or 4.41 per cent over the 1939 fuel tax total and establishes an all time record for this source of income to the state.

The motor vehicle fuel distribution for December amounted to 157,735,552 gallons on which a tax of $4,732,066.56 was levied. This amounted to a gain of 3.98 per cent over the same month of the preceding year and was the twentieth consecutive month in which gains had been recorded in gasoline sales.

Prospectors Shown Strategic Minerals

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Typical specimens of strategic minerals necessary in the national defense program are being displayed by the state division of mines to aid miners in identifying any deposits that may be uncovered in the growing search for these metals.

The division has arranged special displays for these mineral specimens at its San Francisco headquarters and in the district offices at Los Angeles, Sacramento and Redding.

BILL TO FORCE RELATIVES TO AID NEEDY AGED

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 10—(UP)—The problem of requiring relatives to contribute to the support of elderly recipients of aged aid has been a knotty one in recent years.

Among the bills introduced in the legislature this year is one by Norris Poulson, Los Angeles assemblyman, which eliminates the personal income tax as a basis for computing contributions, and substitute a "relatives' contribution scale" to determine the degree of liability of responsbile relatives.

The bill provided that in determining need, the financial circumstances and ability of responsible relatives shall be given due consideration and variances from the scale may be made as the board of supervisors deems justifiable.

The measure provides that "if the person receiving aid has within the state, a spouse or adult child pecuniarily able to support said person," suit may be instituted to secure such part of the aid as the person is able to pay.

The scale itself is based on the number of dependents on the person's income, the monthly income of responsible relatives in one family, and the maximum required monthly contributions.

EASTERN FIRMS PAY STATE HALF MILLION TAXES

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 10—(UP)—The state will receive an unexpected half million dollars of taxes as a result of audits by the board of equalization of business houses books.

Fred E. Stewart, member of the board, announced that reports of 14 auditors recently sent east to check accounts of 125 concerns doing business in California justified sales and use tax deficiency assessments totalling more than $508,000.

The audits cost the state nothing, Stewart said, because the retail sales act provides that the out of state businesses must pay a pro-rata cost of any necessary audits.

SOUTH OF PAGO PAGO COMING TO NEV. THEATRE

"You can have your sarongs, serapes and saris—we'll take slacks and playsuits." Those are the words of Olympe Branda and Frances Farmer, two Hollywood luminaries currently appearing in Edward Small's new romantic drama of the South Seas, "South of Pago Pago," which will have its local premiere at the Nevada Theatre on Thursday through United Artists release.

Miss Bradna, who is a Parisian by birth, starts in by pooh-poohing the movie conception of a sarong. "According to the dictionary and according to eye-witnesses," says the flashing brunette, "a sarong is a long strip of cloth, usually of cotton or silk sewed together at the ends and worn as a petticoat around the waist. What the movies turn up with in the name of a sarong, is just a high style bathing suit without any straps. The ones I wore in 'South of Pago Pago' had beautiful flower designs and were smartly streamlined, but they were far more conservative than the real thing—they had to be. But that's no reason to pretend they're a copy of what the Polynesian beauties dash around in."

As for Miss Farmer, she of the dynamic and symmetrical figure, she prefers slacks and a sports shirt, severely tailored. "As for the much talked of sarong," declares Miss Farmer, "is is a very comfortable piece of clothing as displayed by native South Sea islanders but the Hollywood version is just a compromise. We know the reasons for this state of affairs and we approve wholeheartedly, but we refuse to act as if we didn't know a real sarong from a fake one"

Similar To Those Used In Big Cities

Water and street problems occupied the attention of the city councilmen at the regular meeting last Thursday night. The meeting adjourned early and was believed to have been one of the shortest council sessions here in recent years.

Chief of Police Max Solaro informed the council he expected to soon have red and green stop and go lights for the intersection at Broad and Pine Street. The signals will be similar to those used in the large cities.

To Buy Water Gates

The council authorized the purchase by City Superintendent of Public Works Herbert Hallett four water gates to be placed in various sections of the city as an aid to the water crew.

Sam Hooper, water collector, conferred with the council on the equalization of water rates.

City Attorney Frank Finnegan was authorized to draw up a lease for the rent of the airport to Darrel DeNeal at $1 per year. The council was told it could acquire at a reasonable price an additional 20 acres to the west of the present run way at the airport but the board members did not seem to believe additional space was necessary.

Mayor Ben Hall presided over the council session. Hall was absent at the previous meeting because of illness.
